VIRGINIA STATE FERTILIZER COMPANY,
MANUFACTURERS OF—

High-Grade Fertilizers,
FOR ALL CROPS,
FARMVILLE, - - VIRGINIA.

Read what Mr. A. W. Drumeller says about our guano. He is one of the largest buyers of fine grades tobacco on our market. He has no other interest in the matter than to see the farmers use the best guano to make the high-class tobacco. And what he says is worth something to you:

To my friends who are farmers in Prince Edward and adjoining counties, and others who may be interested:
Having been a tobacco buyer on the Farmville market for a number of years, my own interest compels me to notice carefully and critically the Leaf Tobacco offered on our market for sale, as to its quality, color and texture, particularly during the present season, as there has been a large proportion of dirty colored, coarse, leavy tobacco offered, and I think I can cordially say, after a close observation, that the tobacco offered on our market, said to be made by the Fertilizer known as "Dunnington's Special," has shown more full, finer texture, better quality and color, as a general thing, than other tobaccos sold on our market. And as far as my observation goes, makes a much better and more suitable tobacco for general purposes than tobacco heretofore sold on our market.

The above statement is written without being solicited, and is given as my own opinion, and I hope may prove to the best interest of my friends who are farmers in this and other counties as well as to the tobacco trade generally.

The Dream of the Toy.
The Sandman had a dream one night—
A dream about a boy:
It floated round a while, and then
It settled on a Toy.

The Toy dreamed that it stood in class
With a bunch of boys:
The teacher tapped upon his desk
And cried: "Less noise! less noise!"

Then, looking at the Toy, he scowled
And said: "Next boy—foretell!"
"Oh, please, sir," cried the little Toy,
"I don't know how to spell."

"Indeed, I don't know how to spell,
I'm sure I am a toy,
Although I seem to be in class,
And dressed up like a boy."

"What's that? What's that?" the teacher
cried—
In awful tones he spoke:
The teacher rapped upon his floor,
And then the Toy awoke.

There lay the nursery very still,
The shelf above its head:
The fire burned dimly on the hearth,
The children were in bed.

There lay the dollie and Noah's Ark,
"Oh, dear me," said the Toy,
"I just had such a dreadful dream!
I dreamed I was a boy."
—Katherine Fyle, in St. Nicholas.

The Grove in Winter.
Where, in the zenith of the summer tide,
We watched the glad hours glide,
And in the braided branches o'er us heard
The jubilation of the bird,
Is tearful mourning and impassionate
At the chill ways of fate.

And yet not ever on the driving gale
Do the sad sighs prevail,
For oft the sturdy oak-car will float
Note upon buoyant note,
As though the summer's joyous chorus
now
Made joy upon the bough.

It is the articulation of the trees
Vexing old memories—
The brethren of the wood who chant the mirth
Of the great heart of earth:
It is the vocal grove remembering
The summer and the spring!
—Clinton Scouler, in Youth's Companion.

Delicate Ground.
When you meet a politician
Of a strictly business kind,
Who at last has climbed the ladder
And left all his past behind,
You must compliment him shrewdly
If you don't want any row:
But can you really find him there,
If he doesn't mention how?

You can speak your admiration
Of the place he's risen to
And talk about the future
And the things that he will do.
But brevity is safer.
Simply make your little bow
And say you're glad he's there,
And you needn't mention how.
—Washington Star.

January—California.
When garden plants are pinched and brown,
Because the sun itself is cold,
When streams are silent, frightened down
With sodden drift and the red mold,
When plum trees, stripped of leafy gown,
Toward the misty leaf branches sore;
Then he, my heart, and he, my heart,
The turning of the year.

When crows fly low, and dusks are gray,
And snails are busy on the hill,
When walks are white at break of day,
And from the hedge a robin trills;
When leaf buds feel the rising play
Of spring's intoxicating brew,
Then he, my heart, and he, my heart,
The year begins anew.
—Warren Cheney, in Youth's Companion.

A Change.
I know a feller out our way
Who hollers loud an' long
An' leaves us all in deep dismay,
He seems so fierce an' strong,
An' when he gets us worked up right,
So none of us agree,
He says: "You go ahead an' fight
An' I will referee."

I wonder if that ain't the plan
The kaiser's got in mind,
If it seems a most bellicent man,
One of the earnest kind,
Yet, when the chorus seems to strike
A truly warlike key,
He sort of wands round peaceful-like
An' wants to referee.
—Washington Star.

Sheen of My Lady's Silken Gown.
The sheen of my lady's silken gown,
A jewel's wandering gleam,
A film of lace, a motion of grace,
Are floating before my dream.

If I hold her hand in mine one day,
And name her tenderly "Wife,"
If our eyes shall meet the bitter sweet
That tangles the path of life;
Shall a willful heart thro' her betray
A sigh for the transient gleam,
The film of lace, the ideal grace,
That floated before my dream?
—Catherine Young Glen, in The Puritan.

A Slave to Habit.
When I was a little chap I fairly used to revel
Mid 'em types and presses, for I was a printer's devil.
Soon I learned that I must often, with a
whinny bellow,
Blow the dust from out my case, as did the other fellows.

There the habit grew on me; and though
I'm now a poet,
Salary days I draw my "dust," then straightway go and "blow" it.
—W. H. T. Shade.

New and Old.
He has a brand-new overcoat,
A brand-new suit as well;
A new silk hat on his head,
He looks extremely well.

He has new shoes, new stick, new gloves,
All in the newest style;
His walk is new, his pose is new;
He has a brand-new smile.

He's new all over, in and out,
Excepting at courtship;
You know him now, for he's the man
Who's on his wedding trip.
—Illustrated American.

An Observation.
If we travel around all over the world,
Our friends will at us toss
That well-known proverb, old and worn,
"A rolling stone gathers no moss."
But if we settle down and move
Along in the beaten track,
Those same dear friends will then refer
To us as "an old mossback."
—James Barrett Kirk, in Brooklyn Life.

II.
If men would cease to worry
And women cease to sigh,
Doctors would have to plod afoot
Instead of riding by.

If neighbor spoke to neighbor
As love demands of all,
Then lawyers would make kindling of Their shingles on the wall.
